Hunsaker, S. (2023). Practice Makes Perfect: Basic Simulation Training in the Emergency Department. An interactive online learning module developed for the Emergency Nurses Association "ENA University," a portfolio of courses and resources for emergency nurses to learn new skills and enhance their career development.

Hunsaker, S. (2022). Simulation Center Accreditation

One of the features of Brigham Young University's nursing program is a world-class simulation center where the extensive use of simulation provides a variety of instructional methodologies to support undergraduate and graduate education. Our simulation program became internationally accredited in Teaching/Education by the Society for Simulation in Healthcare (SSH) in the summer of 2022. This commendation indicates that we follow best practices in creating, developing, and implementing initiatives related to using simulation to educate student nurses. Our center is the only accredited academic simulation center in Utah, an impressive recognition, as only 171 simulation programs internationally, including hospital simulation centers, have achieved this accreditation. In 2023, only 19 of 52 simulation center applicants were awarded full accreditation. I was the team leader during the accreditation process and authored the simulation center's accreditation documents.

Hunsaker, S., Lassche, M., Gire, S., Williamson, D. Summers, M. (2019-present). Utah Simulation Coalition Academic Simulation Facilitators Course. A course was developed to train nurse educators to become simulation educators. I co-developed the class with fellow nurse simulation facilitators in Utah. The content remains active in the bi-annual course.

Hunsaker S., (2018). Critical Care Transport Pediatric Pearls. Advanced Trauma and Critical Care Course (ATACC) review course for healthcare providers preparing for national critical care certification exams. Online course offered at Utah Valley University in Orem, Utah.
